What people are saying about the dramatic presentation of St. Paul's First Letter to the Christians in Corinth

There is something special about one person performances. Not only are they few in number and rarely performed but they require immense acting talent, confidence and hard work on the part of the performer. Mark Tiller's one person presentation of St. Paul's First Letter to the Corinthians meets all of these criteria. We are ourselves probably familiar with most of this letter from our weekly readings, but few of us, if any, have heard it all at one session. I somehow think St. Paul meant it to be heard that way. I hope you enjoy 1st Corinthians as much as I did.

Mark Tiller is a talented dramatist. Within moments of his stepping on stage, I was transported back to the Apostle Paul's time. How quickly I became a member of the Corinth congregation, hungry for Paul's words on how we were to live together as a new community of faith. By the end, through a deft and surprising change of costumes and props, I was brought back to the present...this time with new insight on how well Paul's words speak to the churches today. Well done, Mark!
